Contents of Vol. 154

Part 1

J. H. Paterson, J. N. Chapman, W. A. P. Nicholson and J. M. Titchmarsh. Characteristic X-ray production cross-sections for standardless elemental analysis in EDX 1

Frank Glas. Quantitative study of spurious X-ray production in thin film microanalysis 19

J. F. Cavellier, J. P. Berry, F. Escaig, P. Boumati and P. Gaume. Processing of secondary microscope images: an example of application to the thyroid 31

Walter A. Ausserer, Subhash Chandra and George H. Morrison. Morphological and elemental integrity of freeze-fractured, freeze-dried cultured cells during ion microscopic analysis 39

E. J. Roche and R. F. Van Kavelaar. Photometric measurement of small optical path differences 59

K. Nielsen, G. H. Berild, E. Bruun, P. E. Jorgensen and N. Weis. Stereological estimation of mean nuclear volume in prostatic cancer, the reproducibility and the possible value of estimations on repeated biopsies in the course of disease 63

Harry C. Beall, David F. Hastings and H. P. Ting-Beall. Digital image analysis of two-dimensional Na,K-ATPase crystals: dissimilarity between pump units 71

June R. Lawton. An investigation of the fixation and staining of lipids by a combination of malachite green or other triphenylmethane dyes with glutaraldehyde 83

Richard W. Horobin. A numerical approach to understanding fixative action: being a re-analysis of the fixation of lipids by the dye–glutaraldehyde system 93

Book Reviews 97

Erratum 99

Part 2

Audrey M. Glauert and Robert D. Young. The control of temperature during polymerization of Lowicryl K4M: there is a low-temperature embedding method 101

Mark A. Babizhayev, Anatoly I. Deyev and Vladimir I. Derevyagin. Morphometric evaluation of human lens opacification 115

REYNOLDS M. DELGADO III, MICHAEL J. FINK and R. MALCOLM BROWN JR. Imaging of submicron objects with the light microscope 129

T. WILSON. Optical sectioning in confocal fluorescent microscopes 143

D. A. WHARTON and D. S. MURRAY. 3-D reconstruction from optical sections of the traps of the nematophagous fungus Arthrobotrys oligospora 157

VIKTOR BENEŠ. A practical approach to the stereology of anisotropic structures 165

ROBERT P. APKARIAN. Conditions required for detection of specimen-specific SE-I secondary electrons in an analytical SEM 177

Book Reviews 189

Part 3

DING ZE-JUN and RYUICHI SHIMIZU. Theoretical study of the ultimate resolution of SEM 193

DOSUK DUKE LEE. Lattice fringe studies of (100) defects in enamel crystallites 209

A. CEREZO, T. J. GODFREY, C. R. M. GROVENOR, M. G. HETHERINGTON, R. M. HOYLE, J. P. JAKUBOVICS, J. A. LIDDLE, G. D. W. SMITH and G. M. WORRALL. Materials analysis with a position-sensitive atom probe 215

T. VON ZGLINICKI and K. ZIEROLD. Elemental concentrations in air-exposed and vacuum-stored cryosections of rat liver cells 227

C. J. R. SHEPPARD. Axial resolution of confocal fluorescence microscopy 237

T. WILSON and A. R. CARLINI. The effect of aberrations on the axial response of confocal imaging systems 243

ADA L. OLINS, DONALD E. OLINS, HENRI A. LEVY, STEPHEN M. MARGLE, ED P. TINNEL and RICHARD C. DURFEE. Tomographic reconstruction from energy-filtered images of thick biological sections 257

F. A. WILLIAMSON and K. R. PALFRAMAN. An improved method for collecting and staining microorganisms for enumeration by fluorescence light microscopy 267

WULF KAESER. Freeze-substitution of plant tissues with a new medium containing dimethoxypropane 273

WULF KAESER, HANS-WERNER KOYRO and HANS MOOR. Cryofixation of plant tissues without pretreatment 279

Short Technical Note

S. M. EVANS and V. HOWARD. A simplification of the 'step' method for estimating mean section thickness 289

Book Review 295
